

The Mirror

Mission: Plot Twist

The purpose of this Data Collector Sheet is to start collecting concepts and words about yourself from other people, and to start to identify the VALUE you add to their lives. These could be people you've worked with, or people you encounter in everyday life: it's all relevant.

The idea is to ask them how they would describe what you do, what your strengths are, and how you have best helped them in the past. No need to focus on negatives, because we're looking at ways we can work with our strengths.

Then, in the 4th column, identify if those strengths are a skill you have learned, a natural affinity (something you're naturally drawn towards), and/or a talent (something you're gifted with).

Person	"How have I best helped you in the past?"	"What do you think my strengths are?"	Skill, affinity, talent?
